Parts store approved by appeals board

Ralph Medbury, 24 Beacon St., Wilmington has won approval for the construction of a new auto parts store off Kirk Street in Wilmington Square. Approval was given by the board of appeals on July 24. Mr. Medbury has been conducting business for a number of years in the old Roger Buck garage at the corner of Main and Kirk street.

The new building will be of 16,000 square feet, and can be described as being "in back" of the present auto parts store and the Rice Brothers building off Church Street. It will be on a piece of land that is 108 feet wide and nearly 217 feet long. The building will be erected on a slab.

The present building, the old Buck garage, is to be torn down and the space converted into a parking lot.

Bloodmobile Thursday

A Red Cross blood drive will be held at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington on Thursday, July 26 from noon to 5 p.m. Donors may call 657-3910 for an appointment.

During summer months, blood donations are at a low level, making the need more critical.

Worth the wait

A special treat was on hand for concertgoers on Wilmington Common on Tuesday evening. An ice cream smorgasbord was held to benefit the Scott Braciska Scholarship Fund. While Bonnie Braciska added the strawberries, Don Boudreau stood by with other toppings — and a hand (left) waited for the treat.

Langone planning Wilmington's first condos

The first proposed condominiums for Wilmington were discussed Tuesday night by the Wilmington Planning Board. Joseph A. Langone has purchased about 60 acres of land, northerly of Broad Street, and along the Wildcat Branch of the B&M Railroad, to the south of Broad Street. Part of the land was that formerly owned by the late Harold Melzar, about 41 acres, land that almost reaches over to Lubbers Brook.

The entrance to the proposed condominium housing is tentatively planned to be about opposite Carmel Street. The sketch displayed by Bill MacLeod of the Andover Consultants showed about 20 buildings with three condominiums being planned for each building. The roadways shown were curving. The houses were of a style that made each condo seem to be almost an individual building.

Langone told the planning board that he hoped to have more condominiums in the future, in the area extending toward the railroad. There is still engineering work to do, because of extensive wetlands.

The first proposal will have an extensive study by the planning board and town engineer, after which it will have to be presented to a town meeting for approval by the town.

Ask for redesign of addition

The Wilmington Board of Appeals has temporarily set aside any decision on the appeal of Peter H. Lewis, of the Wilmington Cold Storage, to enlarge his building. The one story building is at 2 Industrial Way.

Lewis appeared before the board on July 24 and asked for a variance to add a 10,000 square foot building in front of the present structure. There would be no entrances, as it would be an enlargement of the present building. Twelve parking spaces which have never been used, would be used for the site, Lewis said.

The appeals board was concerned with the building blocking the view of motorists at the corner of Industrial Way and Woburn Street. Lewis was asked to redesign the building so that it would be at the end, as much as possible, of the present structure. His case was continued until the next board of appeals meeting.

Converse ceremony

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held on Tuesday for a new facility for Converse. At left are Converse Board Chairman Richard Lloyd, Town Manager Buzz Staporowski, State Sen. Robert Buell, Marketing VP Gib Ford, "Dr. J." Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers, Nancy Weissenberger, manager of office services, and Ken DeMay of Susaki Assoc., contractor. At right is Commissioner Ronald Ansin of the Mass. Dept. of Commerce, Murray Lilly, president of Yardall Corp., North Reading Selectman Nick O'Brien, and Converse President John P. O'Neil. In back is Drew Pelletier, staff assistant to Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Converse breaks ground on plant

Converse, Inc. of 55 Fordham Rd., Wilmington will have a new address next year. The footwear firm broke ground on a new building on Tuesday.

The site of the new building is on a small hill about 300 feet from the present headquarters. The new building will occupy about 100,000 square feet, and will combine the firm's headquarters and a manufacturing facility presently housed on Industrial Way. The building will actually be located in North Reading, just over the town line.

The world's largest manufacturer of athletic footwear, Converse holds more than 30 percent of the basketball shoe market, and sells some 60 types of shoes. The firm is also making strides in the foreign dominated tennis and running shoe business.

Between 1982 and 1983, Converse doubled its sale of running shoes, and quadrupled its sale of tennis shoes. Converse maintains the largest domestic shoe manufacturing plant, in North Carolina.

Two German firms, Addidas and Puma, are the firm's major competitors. Together, the three firms hold between 60 and 70 percent of the total basketball shoe market.

Last week, the company reported a 30 percent increase in second quarter sales, to $68.5 million. It also reported a 53 percent increase in profits.

She is a graduate of Our Lady of Nazareth Academy and holds an associate of science degree in nursing from Northeastern University and a bachelor of science degree in nursing from Curry College.

Ms. Everett-Ingram is presently employed at the New England Deaconess Hospital, Boston as a nurse manager of a renal cluster unit.

Sally Sheehan

Sally A. Sheehan graduated Cum Laude from U. Lowell College of Management Science in June 1984. She is a 1980 graduate of Tewksbury Memorial High School and the daughter of Francis and Dorothy Sheehan of 1 Marion Dr., Tewksbury.

Roger E. Coville

Roger E. Coville of Powder House Circle, Wilmington was awarded a B.S. degree in business administration at commencement exercises held at Ohio State University on June 8.

There are three Democratic candidates in the race for a seat in Congress, representing the Seventh Congressional District. Congressman Edward Markey of Malden is opposed by former State Senator Sam Rotondi of Winchester and Philip Doherty of Tewksbury. Three state reps, Mike Barrett of Reading, Mike McGlynn of Medford and Nicholas Paleologos of Woburn have withdrawn from the race.

Attorney Lester Ralph is the sole Republican candidate. Mr. Ralph is the former mayor of Cambridge who, with Paul Tsongas of Lowell was elected to a "reform" slate as Middlesex County Commissioners about 10 years ago. He is now a resident of Reading.

Rotondi has reported raising nearly $117,000 in his congressional campaign from April 1 to June 30, about 4 1/2 times as much as Markey. Markey's figure stands at $26,000 for the same period.

However, Markey has received twice as much campaign money as Rotondi, thanks to some donations he received while he was running for the U.S. Senate. Markey abandoned that quest on May 1.

The third candidate, conservative Philip Doherty of Tewksbury, in a newspaper interview last week said he is keeping his pledge to spend no more than $25,000. Doherty, a retired police official, said he thinks it is preposterous that people should spend money to be elected a representative of the people. He charged that his opponents have received funds from "vested interests."

"There is," he told the Woburn Times, "absolutely no way you can represent the ordinary person. That's a fact of life."

Rotondi reported raising $116,880 between April 1 and June 30 of this year. He also reported receiving $41,200 in the first three months of 1984, for a total of $158,080.

Markey's committee has reported receiving $26,127 between April 1 and June 30. Between January 1 and March 30 the committee received $250, for a total of $26,127. Three contributions of $1,000 each were reported during the second quarter.

In the Markey for Senate campaign, the committee reported receiving $62,836 from April 1 to June 30. There were three contributions of $3,000 each in the second quarter.

From January 1 to March 30 the Senate campaign reported receiving $270,299 which brought his Senate campaign total to $333,135, before disbanding on May 1. When this is added to the funds raised for the congressional race the sum is $359,512 raised this year.

Markey reported transferring $42,963 from his senatorial campaign to his congressional campaign in the second quarter.

Doherty, who stands last on the list of contributions received, points with pride to the small scale of his spending. "We're proud of it. We are doing this without a big campaign staff. We are not bringing any Hollywood celebrities in. It's just hard work," he told the Woburn Times.

His Federal Elections statement for 1984 to date amounts to $5,001 received.

TTA elects officers

The Tewksbury Teachers Association (TTA) recently announced election results for the 1984-85 executive board.

Elected as officers were: Sheila Walsh, president; Richard Mousseau, first vice president; Ann Read, second vice president; Carol Rodgers, recording secretary and Mary Ann Primerano, treasurer. Appointed to the position of corresponding secretary was Sue Patterson.

Following are those who were elected to the board as building representatives from each school: Carl Clark, Carol Sagro, and Dick Schadlick from the Dewey, Gail Hamilton, Al LeClair, and Stephanie Pagiavlas from the Heath Brook; Jeff Fiske and Gerry Rideout from the High School; Kevin McArdle from the Individually Guided Education program; Tony Blandini, Helen Hoffman, Betty Kyle and Angela Packard from the Junior High; Sandy Edell and Nancy LaRose from the North Street; Gwen Hedrick and Kathy Quinn from the Shawsheen.

The TTA is also pleased to announce the re-election of Sheila Walsh to the board of directors of the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

Tewksbury senior topics

Cheese and butter will be distributed on July 25 and 26. Because of the rush at the last distribution, the town aid plans to give these items out at the elderly housing complexes according to the following schedule:

July 25, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at Carnation Drive; 1 to 3:30 p.m. at Saunders Circle and Delaney Drive. For those seniors who are not residents at those complexes, and for other low-income families, cheese and butter will be distributed at the town hall from 9 a.m. to noon on July 25 and 26.

Those seniors traveling to Fenway Park for the baseball game on Sat., August 25 are reminded that bus pickup will begin at approximately 10:45 a.m. leaving the Senior Citizens Drop-In Center on Chandler Street at 11:00. Before the game, seniors will stop off at the International Pancake House to eat.

Names are still being taken for the Senior Citizens Day at Salisbury Beach, Thursday, August 16. Those signing up are reminded that there is a lot of walking on this trip.

The August 25 day trip to see "Baby" at the North Shore Theatre is now confirmed and full. However, a waiting list is available. Final payment for this trip is due by August 8.

The Council On Aging will sponsor transportation for those seniors interested in traveling to George's Island Tuesday, August 28. There will be no fee for this trip. The trip will be limited to one bus, so sign up early. Again, we remind seniors that this trip includes a lot of walking. The coordinator will also reserve the right to judge whether or not a senior is able to attend this trip due to the boarding of the boat and the amount of walking on the island. The cut off date for signing up will be August 22.

The summer schedule includes Tuesday bowling at Brunswick Lanes on Route 3A in Burlington at 10 a.m.; arts and crafts on Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.; the nurse's clinic on Wednesday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; pokeno and card games Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m.

Hot lunches are served at the senior center each weekday at noon at a cost of 75 cents or whatever one can afford. Reservations should be made two days in advance. A menu is posted at the senior center. One may call 851-5121 or 851-5949 for reservations.

Those needing transportation for medical appointments are reminded that the medical bus operates during the hours of 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will transport people to those towns bordering Tewksbury. A 48 hour advance notification is required by calling 851-4342.

Wilmington gardener has two fig trees

Growing fig trees in Wilmington is easy, according to David Grise of Boutwell Street, Wilmington. There are two trees, Turkish figs, growing in the yard, next to the corn patch and David expects to pick a couple dozen ripe figs this fall.

Charlie Doucette of Tewksbury grows figs. The Town Crier told of it on June 20. Charlie has his fig trees in big wooden pots, and takes them into the garage for the winter months.

David has a different method. He cuts the roots, or one should say, half the roots of the fig trees every fall. The roots on the west side, and the roots on the east side are cut. Those on the north and on the south sides remain uncut.

David then lays the fig tree down on its side in the garden and covers it over with pine boughs for the winter. In the spring he sets the trees upright, puts some dirt around the roots, and there you are — growing fig trees!

It happens to be an old New England trick, but that by David Grise is the first time the Town Crier has seen it in action.

Figs David Grise displays young figs, growing in his fig tree. He will pick them in the fall.

It only hurts when I don't laugh

by Larz F. Neilson

Even though he was the zaniest orderly in the Mass. General Hospital, Ted Jones was not sure how he would handle himself in Baker 518 the morning of July 28, 1964. The 18-year-old patient had undergone an amputation the day before. And by some strange coincidence, he also got a haircut the same day.

"Hey, Ted, look at this! They trimmed me on both ends!" Some people find it hard to believe that I would be joking about my amputation the next morning. But it was probably the best way that I had to deal with waking up and realizing that my foot was gone forever.

My life changed radically the summer before my senior year in high school. Against my parents' wishes, I bought a Vespa motor scooter from a good friend. I had only driven it a half mile when I was hit by a car.

The first week after the accident was really bad, a maze of operating room lights, long hours in the recovery room, and being sick to my stomach. For two weeks, I was taken to the operating room about every three days. My left leg, which was crushed in the accident, lost circulation and then developed a galloping infection. Two weeks after the accident, my leg was amputated just below the knee. My weight had dropped from 165 to 120 pounds.

But even before the leg was amputated, I had begun to work on a positive attitude. I found that writing helped me organize my thoughts. I wrote about 200 letters that summer, mostly to friends who had written to me. I also wrote to Governor Peabody and suggested that he give blood. I wrote to Dave Maynard, joking with him about a silly contest he was running. I think he almost swallowed his microphone when he read among my jokes that my leg was being amputated the next day. The cards he forwarded to me are stashed in a box in the attic.

To pass the time, I would chin myself on the bar hanging over my bed. Then I began to chin myself on the traction frame above that. And then, one day they transferred me to another floor. When the second shift charge nurse walked in and found me doing chin-ups, she made me stop. She said I needed a doctor's approval before I could do that.

Somehow, it was nearly 17 years before I became involved with a ski program for amputees. I went up to Stratton Mountain in February, 1981 and found their handicap ski program. I told the instructor I was committing myself to learn to ski. By mid-April, I had skied the top of the mountain.

Just as my accident changed my life radically, so has skiing. Sports and fitness for handicapped persons are in a tremendous development phase, a movement which is giving new dimensions to the lives of thousands of people.

I have become strongly involved with the New England Handicapped Sportsmen's Association (NEHSA). This organization runs a ski program for handicapped persons at Mt. Sunapee in New Hampshire during the winter, and has several summer activities as well. A wide variety of handicaps are represented in the group's membership.

Last weekend, I took part in a two-day hike to Carter Notch in the White Mountains. Covering four miles a day on rough trails was a stiff challenge. I have to admit that I am stiff and sore — and satisfied.

My involvement with sports activities has been a true gift to me, both physically and mentally. Whenever possible, I return that gift by passing it on to another handicapped person.

I count my blessings. Although I have been given a handicap, it is not severe. But it gives me enough understanding of handicapping conditions that I have become a strong advocate of accessible facilities for handicapped persons. I am involved with the Wilmington Handicapped Affairs Committee. This group is known as AIM, for Access Is Mandatory.

That accident changed my life, but it certainly didn't ruin it. If anything, it brought out in me the beginnings of many gradual changes in attitude. Twenty years later, I can say: "I'm doing great, just great!"

Of course, you are welcome to your own opinion.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

On behalf of the Silver Lake Spotlighters, I wish to publicly acknowledge and thank the 4th of July Committee and the Knights of Columbus for giving us the privilege of entertaining during the 4th of July celebration on the common.

We are proud to have been selected by the Knights of Columbus to share in the festivities. The Committee is to be applauded for their tireless efforts. The Town of Wilmington continues to be proud of the many volunteers and participants for their planning of another successful week-long celebration.

A special thank you is extended to the Committee for sharing their headquarters with our performers and to Frank Sterrizza and the Knights of Columbus for their cooperation and support.

Hats off also to a very warm and appreciative audience.

Sincerely,
Silver Lake Spotlighters
Celia A. Bartolotti,
President

Dear Larz:

With my hearing aid plugged in again, it becomes apparent that items in Town Crier trigger many conversations around town:

-Why — if the Housing Authority is so thoughtful of housing welfare people — doesn't it be thoughtful enough to ask senior citizens where they would prefer to live and discover Lucci's corner is for them nearly perfect? (drugstore, hairdresser, barber, big market, two banks, card and gift shops, dentist, restaurant — everything but clothes, all right there.)

-Why — can't George accept letters at least taking an interest instead of the too-often apathetic "already down drain" attitude?

-Newcomers to town note how to have a nice gazebo'd common, nice old trees, nice old houses, many churches, lawns, tennis courts, library, high school and athletic grounds, etc. and yet not call that Wilmington Center. The mess — without adequate parking — which some call by that name should instead be Wilmington Crossroads, even if eventually the bridge crosses over 129 or whatever. 'Twould make more sense all around!

-And on the subject of nomenclature: over and over I hear protests about dividing a three mile town into sections; particularly vehement are those labeled South. In the matter of toxic fumes — chemical odors — hazardous waste, the Chemical Task Force (CTF) focuses on drugs, we never hear of hazardous waste meetings, and the newly appointed CTF focuses on the health hazards behind those odors — "not a nuisance, a threat to our health" — should all three committees merge for the betterment of the whole community's health? Strength in numbers, to enforce NOW the state, federal (even local?) laws on these pollutants.

-Really, George, the range of interests is rather remarkable, from wondering why it takes a State Rep to get us traffic lights to why he has not gotten us on the board of the utility company where we represent 60 percent of their income!

Tuned to People
(Name withheld by request)
The "crossroads", as you call it, is referred to as Wilmington Square. The area around the common has been known as Wilmington Center, since the geographic center of town is near the point of the common.

What is now referred to as South Wilmington was always called East Wilmington. And just to ensure that you are totally lost, there was a South Wilmington train station by the old Merrimack Chemical plant in North Woburn, on the other side of the bridge that isn't there any more.

Leadership needed

Why does the town of Wilmington have so many closed school buildings, boarded up and neglected for years. And why are they now being torn down?

Two years ago, the town received and spent a $10,000 grant for a study of five of its buildings. A committee met for several months, working with an architect. They submitted a report.

Since then, here is what has happened to those five buildings:

The Boutwell School has been rented to a Christian school, and is in use.

The Buzzell School has been taken away from the Wilmington Housing Authority and given to the Council on Aging. It is still boarded up.

The Town Hall has been closed and is vacant.

The Whitefield School, most recently used as a town hall annex, has been closed. Money has been appropriated for its demolition.

The Walker School is still closed, and money has been appropriated for its demolition.

The recent demolition of the Mildred Rogers School and the Center School gives pause for thought. Is the town wasting its resources and destroying its heritage?

Even with a $10,000 study, the town does not have a comprehensive plan for the reuse of its buildings. The buildings sit empty, deteriorating. When ideas are put forth by individuals or groups, there is seldom any action. And when action does take place, it is often in the manner of giving grease to the squeakiest wheel.

Probably the worst case of poor leadership took its toll this spring when the Buzzell School became the object of a battle between the Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA) and the Council on Aging (COA). Possibly this battle could have been avoided if there had been a comprehensive plan for all the town's buildings.

With the town offices now moved to the Glen Road School, the old Town Hall has joined the list of vacant buildings. As yet, there is no decision for its use. Will it be used to house the Public Buildings Department, will it become a clock shop, or who knows what?

What is really disappointing about this situation is that there are groups in town which could make use of the space. A prime example is the Silver Lake Spotlighters. This talented and tenacious theater group has given the town far more in entertainment and cultural development than the town has given it in support. The town had turned over the Mildred Rogers School to the Spotlighters, and they were preparing to renovate the building into a small theater, when an arsonist struck. The fire heavily damaged the Spotlighters' sets and costumes, and resulted in moderate damage to the building. It was demolished last month after sitting vacant for nearly two years.

Could have it been saved and renovated? Yes. The building was not damaged beyond repair. The reason for the demise of the Mildred Rogers School was a lack of leadership. There was no determination on the part of town officials to save the facility for community use.

The stated reason, of course, was cost. So instead of spending money to repair the building, the town spent money to tear it down. Instead of a community theater, we have a vacant lot.

Recently the Spotlighters asked the selectmen for the use of the Whitefield School, again for a community theater. They had not developed any firm plans, but there was mention of renovating the building, possibly for $350,000.

The selectmen gave the Spotlighters temporary use of the building for rehearsals and construction of sets. But they told the theater group that the building could certainly not be renovated into a theater. The land was worth more than the building, so it had to be torn down.

Maybe it should be torn down. But there hasn't even been a proposal for the site, much less a comprehensive plan. Does the town have such a great need for vacant lots that it must tear down its buildings?

One very basic problem is that in many ways, the town has a poor self-image. Because the old school buildings in town are not viewed as architectural gems, because they are not energy-efficient, they are being torn down.

These buildings are part of the town's heritage, and should not idly be destroyed.

The Fourth of July Committee has demonstrated that with good leadership, a community-based group can successfully manage a town building. Perhaps this should serve as a challenge for town officials to create a plan for reuse of buildings.

Barbara Espinola is bride

Barbara Espinola, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Espinola of Wilmington and David Bianchi, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bianchi of Bristol, N.H. were married on June 2 at the First Baptist Church, Wilmington. The Rev. Everett Reed officiated at the 11 a.m. service highlighted by a special wedding candle ceremony.

The bride wore a princess style gown of satin and tulle overlaid with lace and seed pearls. The skirt extended into a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil with lace appliques was caught to a matching Juliet cap with short strands of pearls along the edges. She carried a colonial bouquet of mini carnations, stephanotis, and lily of the valley.

The matron of honor, Marcia Schacht of Wilmington, wore a full length gown in a pastel shade of blue and carried a colonial bouquet of carnations and baby's breath. Gowned in the same style dresses but in pastel rose were the bridesmaids - Mary Espinola, sister of the bride and Jennie Peak of Wilmington. They carried

Tewksbury Planners approve 12 lot cluster subdivision

by Jim Brown
Tewksbury Editor

The Tewksbury Planning Board voted Monday to give their conditional approval to issue a required special permit to develop a cluster type subdivision off South Street. The action followed a public hearing at which residents voiced little opposition to the proposed construction of 12 homes on a total 13½ acre parcel.

However, only three board members voted in favor of approving a special permit which requires a four vote majority. Planner Joseph Doherty, who did not attend Monday's meeting, will be polled to see if he approves of the plan. Should Doherty vote in the negative, the plan will apparently have to be refied.

The subdivision, known as Molle Drive, is located on a 13½ acre parcel to the rear of the Knights of Columbus Hall on Main Street and extends over to South Street. The site is also to the rear of several houses along Hill Street and abutts the Shawshen River.

The parcel is owned by Sullivan Homes and is being developed by EPS Realty Trust. Planner Robert Sullivan, whose son Edward is involved in the project, had to step off the board while discussion and action on the plan took place.

The plans, prepared by the engineering firm of DiPrete Marchionda and Assoc. of Woburn, calls for the clustering of 12 homes on about 8.4 acres of land. A parcel of 5.1 acres to the rear of the K of C Hall and near the Shawshen River will be left as open conservation land when the project is complete.

Town bylaws allow the planning board to issue a special permit allowing the clustering of homes on lots of no less than 20,000 square feet as long as the total number of homes in the cluster does not exceed the number of homes that could be built under the one acre zoning bylaw. The primary purpose of cluster subdivisions is to preserve open space.

Engineer Dennis DePrete told the board that access to the parcel will be off South Street about 150 feet away from the intersection with Hill Street and that the land on the Main Street side will be untouched.

Currently, DePrete said, the South Street half of the parcel is an old gravel pit while two structures that housed a business and a large amount of pine trees occupy the rest of the land just to the rear of the K of C Hall. Those structures, a complete building and a foundation, will be razed, he said. DePrete also agreed with a resident's request to check to make sure there is no fuel storage tank left in the ground near the building site.

The plan, DePrete said, calls for regrading of the pit area and the creation of 12 house lots along an 886 foot long cul-de-sac street.

While residents noted that the parcel of land abutting the Shawshen River is a wet area, DePrete gave assurances that the foundations of the proposed homes would be above the water table level and that septic systems would not be affected by flood waters.

DePrete also assured George Lucas of 40 Hill Street that a survey of the parcel shows it does indeed consist of 13½ acres of land. Lucas had cited assessors maps and 15 year old plans as showing the land area to be around 11.5 acres and that recent development plans put the land area at around 12 acres.

"I don't understand how it (acreage) keeps going up over the years," he said.

DePrete, however, said that "there are obvious errors on the assessors maps," which showed the parcel at about 11.27 acres. He added that a search of records showed that no plan for the land had ever been recorded and that an actual survey of the land showed it contains 13.5 acres. The subdivision plan, he said, would be the first such plan to be recorded in land courts for the parcel.

Lucas also wanted to make sure the planning board put the name of the engineer who took water percolation tests on the site into the official records so that residents would know who to address their questions to if the land ever flooded.

Dennis Duffy of 50 Hill Street, however, asked what impact the development would have on traffic to the Hill Street area. He claimed there is an "inordinate" amount of traffic on Hill Street now and worried what impact the addition of "12 two and three car families" would have. "Do Hill Street and South Street have to carry the burden of this" increase in traffic, he asked.

Planner Bob Fowler suggested that the South Street access to the site may be better than gaining access from Main Street. A Main Street access point, he said, "Would not be a good plan as far as use of the land is concerned." He also said that not all traffic from the new homes will travel Hill Street.

Duffy also questioned where the water to serve the 12 new homes is coming from. The board said a letter from Department of Public Works Supt. Phil Pattison indicated that the 12 homes "can be adequately supplied with water by the town." However, that letter also noted that "a town-wide state enforced water ban will remain in effect through September 30, 1984."

"Doesn't it seem contradictory to not have enough water in town and then say there is enough water to add 12 more homes," asked Duffy just before the public hearing was closed. Planners, however, suggested Duffy address that question to the board of public works.

Although casting his vote in favor of the plan, Planner George Donovan also questioned how water could be supplied to new homes while a ban is in effect.

In addition to voting for the special permit, the planners also unanimously voted in favor of DePrete's request to waive certain subdivision rules on the plan that will allow the road to be 28 feet wide instead of 30, allow the road to exceed 500 feet in length, allow sidewalks on one side of the road instead of both, and allow above ground utilities.

If Doherty is in favor of the plan, planners are expected to sign a special permit Thursday. The plan will then be filed at the town clerk's office for a 21-day appeal period, in which any resident opposed to the plan can take legal action to challenge the planning board's decision. Once the appeal period is over, the design plans go back to the board to be signed into effect.

Constables paid the taxes if they did not collect

A constable, in ancient Wilmington, was a town official who did not want his job. Or, so it seems from the records of 1741, when Nathaniel Townsend was elected to that post, after a lot of voting. Nathaniel presumably lived down near the southeast corner of Wilmington, near the home of his brother Timothy.

Most men, when elected constable, didn't want the job. Instead they paid a fine, and the election went on to choose another.

The Town Meeting in 1741 was on Monday, March 2, in the Meeting House. Cadwallader Ford was elected Moderator, and the first thing done was to vote 25 cords of wood for Mr. Isaac Morrill. "If he is to be our minister and accepts the town call."

Then the selectmen were elected. Deacon James Tompson, Capt. Kendall Pearson, Ensign Danil Eames, Cadwallader Ford and Sar (Sargent) John Beard. Deacon Tompson was elected Town Clerk. The Assessors were elected. Ensign Danil Eames, Sargent John Beard and Cadwallader Ford. Stephen Wesson, who lived at what is now the corner of West Street and Lowell Street was elected treasurer.

Electing a constable was the next item of business. It was not a popular game.

Samuel Killiam was elected. He chose to pay his fine.

Thomas Rich was elected. He too chose to pay his fine.

William Tucker was elected.

William Tucker paid his fine. Lieutenant Ebenezer Beard was then elected. Lt. Beard too paid his fine.

Someone must have suggested that the election of constable be tabled. The town meeting went on to elect other officers.

Thomas Rich and Nathaniel Townsend were elected Tything Men. Joshua Thompson, Jonathan Jones, Sargent Samuel Buck, Capt. Kendall Pearson, Sargent John Beard, William Butters, Cadwallader Ford and John Jaquith were elected Surveyors of Highways. (There was a Surveyor of Highways for each section of town. The election of such men is sometimes a clue as to where they lived, Ed.)

John Harnden and Gershom Flag were elected Fence Viewers. Joshua Tompson was elected Sealer of Weights and Measures. Samuel Butters and Nathaniel Townsend were elected Field Drivers.

John Harnden and Joshua Eames were named Hog Reeves. That post should not be thought of as a swineherd, but rather as an official who made certain that other farmers looked after their swine.

The town meeting voted to accept Mr. Morrill's answer, and voted one hundred pounds toward his "settlement" and one hundred and fifty pounds for his salary. That was a lot of money, even when speaking of the depreciated currency of New England.

Wilmington had, possibly three hundred residents. It may have been higher. But it voted, at that time for nearly a pound for the minister, from each person in town, man, woman or

'Where's the spoon?'

Bill MacKinnon of Moore Street, Wilmington has been declared the official winner of the Town Crier's Mythical Golden Pea Spoon for this year. It was a late year for peas — Bill served his on June 15. Rita Palino of Auburn Avenue was second. Although the "spoon" is mythical, Bill might just create his own. He is an amateur pewter smith.

Tewksbury youth killed in head-on collision

A head-on collision took the life of a 20-year-old motorcycle operator on Beech Street late Monday night, according to Tewksbury police.

The victim, Wallace B. Dobbin, 20, of 41 Patten Rd., Tewksbury, was operating an unregistered and uninsured motorcycle in the middle of the road when he struck a car driven by Richard Danner, 20, of 908 North St., Tewksbury at around 11:00 p.m., according to police.

Dobbin was rushed to St. John's Hospital in Lowell where he died from injuries suffered in the accident shortly after midnight.

According to police reports, Dobbin was operating a red Kawazaki motorcycle at a high rate of speed in the middle of Beech Street when the car driven by Danner approached him head-on. Danner, according to reports, tried to turn to the right of the road while Dobbin turned left and struck the car head-on.

Police say Dobbin, who was wearing protective headgear, flew off the motorcycle, struck the car windshield and was thrown 57 feet in the air before he came to rest. He suffered several facial cuts and internal injuries as a result of the crash.

The crash, police say, left a 2½ to three foot dent in the front of the car, but that Danner was not injured.

Police also report they found no evidence that Dobbin had tried to brake before the accident, which happened just before the intersection of Driftwood Drive.

Police also believe that Dobbin may have been the operator of a red motorcycle that several area residents had complained about during the past week. Police say several calls were logged concerning the operator of a red motorcycle racing around the neighborhood all of last week.

Police also say that just seconds after a resident of the area phoned to report the accident, another resident of the area phoned to complain that a red motorcycle had sped past the house at a high rate of speed.

Blades, Krugh lead the way

Tewksbury bashes to title, 15-5

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

Tewksbury's American Little League (11-12 years old) All-Stars could sense a rout was on the way before Tuesday night's game at Chelmsford's Pitts Field, and a rout was just what this bunch of battling bashers got in mauling Andover American, 15-5 to win the District 14 championship.

Every player in the lineup had at least one hit, including slugger Scott Blades, who tomahawked a pair of mammoth blasts into the trees for his sixth and seventh homers of the seven game tournament. It was the second time in the tourney that Blades powered two homers in one game.

The champions also received a gutsy pitching performance from ace righthander Keith Krugh, who battled through two wild innings in the fourth and sixth to chalk up the clincher. Krugh fired a four-hitter while fanning seven and walking seven.

Tewksbury also played errorless ball that included a fine catch of a foul popup by catcher Jim McLean and a game ending line drive snare by shortstop Chris Sullivan.

"We hit and we won, that was the name of the game," offered manager Gus Maniscalco following the clincher. "The bats amazed me. Everyone did it one way or the other. We also played errorless ball."

Maniscalco and coach Larry Lumia knew well before the game that the team could hit a tough Andover pitcher who had handcuffed the locals in their lone tournament loss. The locals came back from that recent 3-2 setback to Andover American and set to mashing a pair of AA lefties.

"If we hit I knew that we'd win," offered Maniscalco. "I knew they could hit this pitcher the second time around. Larry even called (predicted) for at least 14 runs before the game."

Tewksbury forced Tuesday night's winner-take-all showdown with a 5-4 victory over previously unbeaten Andover American Sunday. The other key Tewksbury wins came over Lawrence Tower Hill (14-2), Lawrence Central (14-1) and Tewksbury National (7-0).

The District 14 champions now advance to Bi-District action Saturday (July 28) against the District 13 kingpin, either Stoneham American or Acton Colonial North.

The champs finished with 17 hits, scoring in every inning, sometimes in bunches. Tewksbury plated five runs apiece in the second and fourth innings, two apiece in the third and fifth and one in the bottom half of the first to knot the score at 1-1.

Andover American did rally to score four runs in the fourth frame to cut the lead to 8-5 and make it interesting until the bottom half of the inning when the locals scored five more runs.

Blades provided the power with two homers and three RBI's. But Scott was not alone in wielding a red-hot stick. Tim Beddard (double, single), Derek Hartquist (two singles, RBI), McLean (two singles, RBI), Krugh (two singles, two RBI's), Sullivan (two doubles, RBI), Jim Rogers (single, double, two RBI's), Jeff Saunders (single, double, two RBI's) and Bob Carney (bunt single, RBI) all contributed mightily to the clincher.

Reserves Dave Perry, Keith Miles, George Haslam, Steve Cooke and Greg 'Eggy' Basilio all contributed to the championship with valuable bench support throughout the tournament.

Easter Seal Softball Marathon

As many as 30 area softball teams are expected to participate in the 1984 Bud Light Easter Seal Softball Marathon, co-sponsored by Marshalls from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., August 11 and 12 at Pine Banks in Melrose.

"It promises to be one of the Eastern Middlesex's biggest Easter Seal events ever with what we expect will be a record number of teams entering," said Bob MacArthur of Seaboard Products, who will serve as chairman of the marathon.

Registration is open to both organized and pick-up teams. Minimum entry donation is $200 per team, for which each team receives two cases of Bud Light beer and a game trophy.

MacArthur pointed out that the Bud Light Easter Seal Softball Marathon is open to all teams - advanced, amateur, and co-ed. "We want every business, recreational and competitive team in the area signed up," he said. "In addition, the Marathon is open to any group of people who wish to form a pickup team. The most important thing is to get people out onto the ball field to show that they care enough to play ball for disabled kids and adults in the Eastern Middlesex area.

MacArthur emphasized that marathon proceeds will go to help fund swimming programs, stroke clubs, recreational camping and rehabilitation services for children and adults who are disabled.

Anyone wishing to register a team in the Marathon, or seeking additional information, call the Lawrence Easter Seal office at 683-1259 or the 24-hour hot line at 598-1250.

District 14 champs

It was a night to remember for the Tewksbury American Little League All-Stars, as they routed Andover American for the District 14 title. Clockwise from bottom left: second baseman Bob Carney gets serious; Keith Krugh hurls the clincher; Scott Blades heads home with his seventh tourney homer; and Tim Beddard plates an early Tewksbury run.

Vachon Most Improved Player

Derek Vachon of Tewksbury has been named the Most Improved Player on the 1983-84 Bentley College golf team. Vachon, a sophomore, also received his second varsity letter.

The Falcons, who are coached by Lou Flumere, had a combined spring fall record of 17-6-2 this past year. In addition, they finished eighth in the Massachusetts State Tournament.

A 1982 graduate of Tewksbury High School, Vachon is majoring in computer information systems. He is the son of Ray Vachon of Trull Road, Tewksbury.

King vs Tighe Club August 14

World famous softball pitcher Eddie Feigner will make an appearance at Wilmington's Tom Aprile Memorial Field (Town Park) when the King and His Court battle the Tighe Club (50-5 in 1984) in a fundraising contest Tuesday night August 14 starting at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the game are $3.00 and can be purchased at the gate or at D and D Gulf, Farmer and the Dell or at the Town Park during Wilmington Softball League games.

Glen Road Playground
The Wilmington Recreation Department Cool Cadets travelled to Wamesit Miniature Golf Wednesday to test their skills on the putting greens. Through the efforts of a great number of volunteer parents, 86 children were able to attend. The spirit of cooperation demonstrated by the children's parents who give of their time to transport playgrounders during field trips has thus far been exceptional.

Arts and crafts
The arts and crafts program this week consisted of making pipe cleaner animals. Julie Robinson created a tailless black bear out of blue and yellow pipe cleaners. Many children mirrored pipe cleaner dogs and horses constructed by the leaders to help stimulate individual ideas during the animal building stages.

Playgrounders of the week
Playgrounders of the Week were Jena Neal and Jerry Driscoll. Both were recognized Monday during the weekly meeting at the playground.

The Recreation Department would like to thank Sharon Carbone and Mr. and Mrs. Carbone of Meadowcroft Lane for opening their home and pool to almost 100 children Thursday for a pool party. Cable television attended the social, and by now has already shared the fun and excitement experienced that day on delayed tape.

New registrants
New registrants are always welcome, and in fact eight new happy, smiling faces were seen at the playground recently.

Field trips
Parents who wish their children to attend the last five field trips offered this summer should sign them up early, since the remaining excursions will be on a first-come, first-served basis. These trips, in chronological order, are: Magic Performance in Beverly on July 25; Cranes Beach, August 7; Stoneham Zoo, August 8; Canobie Lake, August 10 and the New Hampshire Aquarium, August 13.

Red Sox tickets
The Wilmington Recreation Department has tickets for the Saturday, August 4 game against Texas. The cost is $4.00, and includes bus transportation. It is a 2:15 game. The bus will leave WHS at 1 p.m. Out-of-towners are welcome on a space, available basis. Call 658-4270 for more information.

Beach Day
For the 11th consecutive year, Wilmington's Police Association, in conjunction with the Recreation Department, will sponsor Beach Day.

Beach Day will be held at Silver Lake Thursday, August 2 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. There will be swimming races for ages six through 12, along with the very popular sand castle competition.

The special treat of the day is the giant cookout for the youngsters. Hot dogs, hamburgers and cool, refreshing watermelon will be served up to all the hungry participants. To be eligible for the day's activities, youngsters should register at the Glen Road Playground. This daily program runs from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Boys and girls may register anytime at the playground.

Teen overnight
The Wilmington Recreation Department is planning a teen overnight to Conway, New Hampshire Tuesday and Wednesday, August 14 and 15. Participants will be staying in tents at a campground by the Saco River Tuesday night. Chaperoning the trip will be Helene Desforge (teen supervisor), Bill Turner (physical education instructor) and Ron Swasey (recreation director). The group will consist of between 10 and 20 Wilmington teens. Transportation will be in private vehicles Tuesday

Cripps' coaching pays off

Shell squads pace Triathalon

Wilmington's Fourth of July Triathalon (formerly the quadrathlon) was won by a team from Wilmington Shell again this year. The event consists of a 1.7 mile run around Silver Lake, followed by a 3.2 mile bicycle ride before finishing with a canoe race from Baby Beach to Town Beach.

The first and second place teams in the Wilmington resident team division race were both products of Robert Cripps' coaching.

The first place team consisted of runner Frank Dinsmore, biker Mark Warren and canoeists Robert Warren and Donald Penney.

The cost will be $20.00. This price will cover transportation, camping fees and most meals.

Campers may choose from such activities as mountain climbing, canoeing, fishing, swimming, inner-tubing and general campground activities. Some may wish to go to Attitash, where there's a water park and Alpine Slide.

A more detailed information sheet will be distributed if enough interest is shown. The Recreation Department reserves the right to be selective in who takes part in this trip. At least 10 teens must return the permission slip by August 3.

Both teams will return for the 1985 race. They expect to be joined by at least three more teams under the direction of WHS coach Cripps.

An October wedding is planned.

Apple winner

Jerry Pulaski of Butters Row, Wilmington was the third and final winner of an Apple McIntosh computer in a recent sweepstakes held by the Massbank for Savings. Don Washburn, right, executive vice president, made the presentation. Other winners in the three month promotion were Laurence Taylor of Reading and Frederic Moody of Melrose.

Samaritans need volunteers

The Samaritans are looking for men and women who can give five hours a week to befriend those who are alone, depressed and in danger of suicide. You don't need experience. Training is provided. Call The Samaritans for more information.

If you think you might not be able to cope, but would like to try, you are probably the kind of person they are looking for. Call 668-6607 (Lawrence) or 452-6733 (Lowell).

Wilfred Lemos of Parker Street, Wilmington celebrated his 87th birthday on July 10. A retired piano tuner, he moved to Wilmington from Wakefield 27 years ago, having spent many summers here before that. Mr. and Mrs. Lemos have been married for 57 years.

Saturday night crash

A Lowell man was injured in a single-car accident on Concord Street at the North Reading line about 8 p.m. Saturday. Richard Ralsvert was taken to the Regional Health Center in the Wilmington ambulance. (Photo by David Fitzgerald).

Wilmington police news

During the week ending July 25, Wilmington police officers responded to 11 accidents, 22 alarms, one domestic problem, 11 disturbances and four incidents of suspicious activity.

Six larcenies were investigated, five arrests and two protective custody detentions were made. Other departments were assisted twice, three trailbike complaints and four regarding traffic were logged. One break and entry was reported, two stolen vehicles were recovered, one threat complaint was made and seven incidents of vandalism are still under investigation.

Arrests

Officers Jim Cuoco and Bob Spencer arrested Doru Ipechian, 125 Common St.,

Watertown Wednesday at the Cambridge jail and transported him to the Wilmington lockup where he was held over night.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

Your recent front page article "First condos?" prompts me to inform you that the first condo in Wilmington was built by a local resident by the name of "Dickie Bird."

There are 10 units, no vacancies — to show you how popular condos will be here in our Industrial City.

Oh, by the way, this condo is strictly for the BIRDS (see photo) and is located at 404 Andover Street amidst our little residential cocoon and our Industrial City here in the God forsaken Land of Nod.

Love Y'all
"Mrs. Dickie Bird"

Wilmington senior topics

Seniors beware!

Many elderly citizens are swindled out of their life savings each year by fast talking con-artists who offer them ways to maintain financial stability through non existing stocks and bonds.

Seniors who are interested in investing money and want to know what an elderly person should look for and what questions to ask should hear Steven Andelman of Prudential-Bache who will be at the Drop in Center Thursday, July 26 at 2 p.m. He will speak to seniors on safe investments for the elderly and will answer questions regarding banks and investments.

Nurse at the Center Thursday
Abbie Radley, R.N. will be at the Center Thursday from 1:30 p.m. She will check blood pressures and give the diabetes test.

Many programs available

Many programs are administered under the Council on Aging. They are all organized for the well being of seniors. The cover all areas of care, social, therapeutic, health, exercise, educational (speakers on issues of important to older people), outreach, nutrition and crafts.

Two very important programs in the above categories are the Vial of Life Program (which will prevent errors in treatment under emergency situations); and the Senior Postal Alert Network (S.P.A.N.); (the Span program is set up for older persons who live alone). Through this program a senior is given a form to make out which contains name, address and next of kin and their telephone number. It is kept on file in the office. They are then given a decal which is placed on their mail box. The post office is notified that the decal is in the box. If the senior's mail is not picked up in a day, the mail man is to call the number of the Drop-in Center on the decal, following which next of kin or the police department will be notified.

The importance of this program was brought to the attention of the Council last week. A senior's mail was continually delivered for some time before it was learned that she had died. If the decal was in the box, the mailman would have had to report it. The decal may not have saved this senior, but many times a senior who lives alone may be injured in a fall, having a decal in teh box may save a life. The registration form and decal are available at the Drop-in Center.

Arts and crafts picnic

The arts and crafts picnic will be held at the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks Wednesday, August 8. It is an all day affair with dinner to be served at noon. This will consist of barbecued chicken (well done) salad, potato, corn, coffee and fruit compote. A $2.00 non-refundable deposit will be required when registering at the center. Seniors should say whether they will be eating chicken or a hamburger, which will be available for those who dislike chicken.

Minuteman menu

Housing prices UP-UP-UP

By David Clark Scott
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Framingham, Mass.

The "silicon belt" is bulging. High-technology firms are spilling beyond the Route 128 girdle and spreading west to Route 495. And this expansion is profoundly affecting the housing market in suburbs west of Boston.

"The impact has been phenomenal," says Craig Foster of Foster & Foster Realty, which has 20 offices in the area.

Low-slung brick office buildings and new homes now squat where Herefords grazed a decade ago. The setting remains rustic but housing costs have spiraled.

In the mid '70s, new growth was absorbed by towns west of Route 128 - Concord, Bedford, Acton, Chelmsford, and Sudbury. But by 1978, "there were incredible price increases. High-tech demand grew and pressure increased for local communities to restrict growth," Mr. Foster explains.

Frustrated by zoning road-blocks and higher land costs, residential and commercial developers are now taking up positions along the periphery of Route 495 and pumping up prices there.

"A year ago, if you told me you were building a $100,000 or $105,000 home in Hudson or Marlborough, I'd say, 'You're nuts.' Not today," Foster says.

Why? Aside from the new companies flocking to these towns, nearby Westborough was selected recently to host the highly prized Microelectronics Center. Many consider this $40 million research and training facility a magnet for development. Wang and Data General have already bought land close by, says Ken Dallamora of Dallamora Real Estate in Framingham.

Still, it is near this second "silicon belt" along Route 495 that first-time buyers are told to hunt for their American Dream.

For properties of less than $100,000, Foster recommends Marlborough, Hudson, and Tewksbury, as well as parts of Chelmsford, Littleton, and Lowell. Closer to Boston, other Realtors add Billerica and Wilmington into the "easily affordable" list.

"Billerica is one of the few towns that has built a lot of homes in the last 10 years. And it's one of the most active markets in the state," claims Vincent DeLuca of Suburban Realty Group in Burlington.

Homes in Billerica average $95,000, he says. That same three-bedroom house in Billerica would sell for $110,000 in Burlington, $125,000 in Bedford, and $150,000 in Lexington or Winchester, he adds.

Even nearer to Boston the lots are smaller and the houses older, but Woburn, Waltham, and Watertown do have some low-priced properties.

"In Watertown, single-family homes average $95,000," says Charles Agrillo of Century 21 West Realty. How many homes does he have at that price? "None, right now."

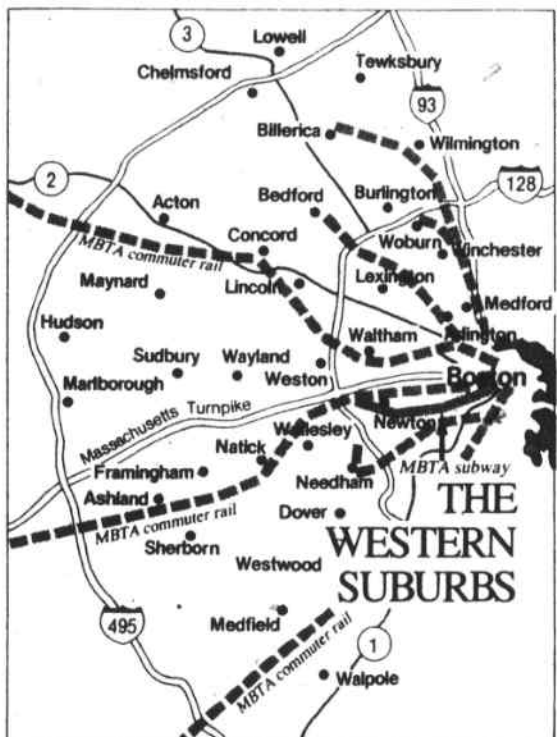

However, there is an abundance of two-family dwellings here, averaging $130,000. And if someone rents one floor, Mr. Agrillo calculates, the monthly payments could be $300 less than payments on a $95,000 single-family home.

Next door, in Waltham, Paul McNulty of Coleman & Sons says there are a few properties for less than $100,000, but the bulk of homes are between $100,000 and $125,000.

If these prices seem high, brokers suggest: "Go condo." Condominiums are becoming more popular as a way to build equity before moving up in the market. Realtors say Marlborough, Acton, Arlington, and Framingham are stocked with condos ranging from $50,000 to $90,000.

Moving up the ladder, to the under $125,000 rung, Realtors take buyers to Burlington, Arlington, Natick, and some parts of Bedford and Framingham.

On the next step are towns preferred by executive transferees - the $115,000 to $175,000 market in Framingham, Bedford, Newton, Needham, Winchester, Lexington, Belmont, Concord, Acton, Sudbury, Southboro, and Weymouth.

On the top rung: Lincoln, Carlisle, Weston, Dover, and Sherborn. Here the setting is serenely rural. Pre-Revolutionary stone walls flank lush meadows and oak-thick forests, which are often set aside as conservation land. Typically, lots are larger than an acre and neighbors are a wooded-walk away.

Prices climb into the "upper 100s" [$100,000] before you find anything interesting," says Marge Smith of Bourgeois-Smith Realtors in Lincoln. Most homes fall into the $200,000 to $400,000 range and new building starts at $250,000, she says.

Throughout the western suburbs, school systems are consistently praised and transportation, a nicely meshed web of major roads and two rail links to the city, is lauded.

The current seller's market has seen tremendous increases of 15 to 25 percent as buyers outbid each other for a diminishing supply of homes.

But in recent weeks, the buying has abated. Craig Foster explains: "As interest rates started up in April and May, it increased activity as buyers were anxious to close. Then, as the rates crept and softened, that slows the market down because people feel they can wait now until it drops [further]." But, with interest on a fixed-rate, 30-year mortgage at 14 to 15 percent, "we've clipped the wings of first-time buyers now."

What an American Story

"Miles from Home"

By JIM ROUILLARD

From tiny brooks, now the mighty rivers flow
I see green fields where deserts used to be

I'll still be here when today is long ago
For my name is liberty.

Randy Sparks
Massachusetts has provided harbor for many writers, both native and transplanted, some from nearby, some from halfway round the world.

Now, one of those transplants, Anna Kim-Lan McCauley of Wakefield, in her recently published autobiography, "Miles from Home," writes of simple things: joy and friendship, loyalty and laughter - and of accommodation with adversity when it cannot be intirely overcome.

Rootless once, Anna McCauley is rootless no more - but has found home, her life established firmly now in Middlesex County, where she has lived for the past 21 years.

The poet Robert Frost, California-born, may also be counted among the transplants. He was raised in Lawrence, his heritage from New Hampshire parents and his poetry - mind, bone and sinew - reflects the granite spine, the woods and fields of the land which brought him forth. Yet Frost's greatness does not derive from his origins, but from the universal quality of his message, which speaks in all times and all lands:

The woods are lovely, dark and deep,

But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

For some, the title of Anna McCauley's book may recall these lines from Frost's poem, "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening."

But in an even more literal sense, the "dark and deep" of Frost's poem is appropriate to Anna's experience - for she is blind - and wrote "Miles from Home" in braille, from which it was transferred for the printer and has now been published for anyone who can read English.

"Miles from Home" with its simple, poetic content, represents a small ripple from the stones of

Miles to S-4

ON THE LANDING of the back stairs of her home in Wakefield, Anna Kim-Lan McCauley displays a native Vietnamese dress, sent by friends long ago in Vietnam. The dress and sash are pink, with under trousers of white.

Education: Questions And Answers

Did your child have difficulty in school last year that resulted in a poor self image? A student's learning ability is directly related to his self image!

Did you know that a child who sees himself in the positive light of God's love makes a better student?

At the Garden of Eden Christian School we are as concerned with each student's self-image as we are about their ability to read and write.

A good self image, in a quiet, orderly classroom enables average students to produce above average results!

Our traditional, high quality program, with loving Christian teachers could make a big difference in your child's life!

Call or write us today to find out how your child can grow in self confidence through a Christian education. We offer Kindergarten through grade 6.

New physical exam for students

A new physical examination program for school and college age students has been announced by Dr. James Distelhorst, director of the Family Care Center at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham.

The program, started on a trial basis according to Distelhorst, provides routine physical exams needed to enroll at various schools and colleges. Also included are sports exams and camp physicals. The charge is $12, plus a small fee for any special lab tests which may be required in individual cases.

The examinations will be given between now and the end of August. Anyone interested in setting up an appointment should call the NEMH Family Care Center at 662-6400 right away.

Dr. Distelhorst, a 1979 graduate of Harvard Medical School, is also director of the NEMH family practice residency (a training program for doctors which is being discontinued.) Distelhorst replaces Dr. Reginald Rice of Winchester, who plans to transfer to California later this year. Distelhorst is a resident of

Wakefield where he lives with his wife and two sons, Gregory and Luke (who was born at NEMH on the Fourth of July.)

Registered nurse, Roberta Ede, has been appointed new Nursing/Office manager of the Family Care Center. Ede has been the head nurse of the NEMH family clinic since 1982 and lives in North Reading with her husband and two children.

New England Memorial Hospital overlooks Spot Pond just south of the Stone Zoo in Stoneham.

Department of Social Services

Help for hearing impaired

If you are hearing-impaired and would like to find a day care center for your child, a homemaker, a family counselor or some other family support service, please call the Department of Social Services' TTY for Region III at 727-0930. Joseph Bolino, Eastern Middlesex, Area Director for the Department, wants to be sure local citizens know that the TTY, a telecommunications device for the deaf, is in service. He also wants to remind them that further supports, such as sign-language interpreters, can be made available. The TTY may be used by deaf persons who are interested in receiving services from the local DSS office. It is also available for inquiries about becoming an adoptive or foster parent, and for reports of possible child abuse or neglect. To report child abuse or neglect after 5:00 p.m. or on weekends, please call the Child-at-Risk Hotline at 1-800-792-5200; this number has both telephones and TTY's in service. Mr. Bolino also announces that Ms. Sheila O'Connell has been appointed to full-time 504 Coordinator for the Department. "I'll be working to improve consumers' access to service and employees' access to workplace," says Ms. O'Connell. "This means improving physical access, and it also involves outreach to the disabled community and education within DSS." A graduate of Boston College, she comes to the Department from Bay Cove Human Services where she was coordinator of day treatment programs. DSS consumers with concerns about access to services may call Ms. O'Connell in Boston at (617) 727-0900 or 523-3357 (TTY).

Wilmington firm appoints Zack

Polymer Technology Corporation of Wilmington, Mass., developers of The Boston Lens II Contact Lens, has appointed Michael Zack to the newly created position of Director of International Marketing. The Boston Lens II Contact Lens is a rigid gas permeable contact lens that offers oxygen permeability and inherent wettability — two properties previously thought to be incompatible.

Mr. Zack will supervise the expansion of the overseas marketing program for The Boston Lens II Contact Lens. In Canada, it is the number one best-selling rigid gas permeable contact lens.

Just approved last November by the Federal Drug Administration, The Boston Lens II Contact Lens has already become the number two best-selling rigid gas permeable contact lens in the United States.

Perry Rosenthal, M.D., Polymer's chairman of the board and director of medical affairs, announced Mr. Zack's appointment. "We are extremely pleased to welcome Michael Zack to Polymer," he said. "His extensive international background should be a tremendous asset as we continue our efforts to attract increasing interest in The Boston Lens throughout the world." He served in various positions for the company in such locations as Iran, Ecuador, Peru, Germany and Colombia. His most recent position was executive vice president of Datamedix, Inc., a Grunenthal subsidiary based in Massachusetts. Michael Zack received an economics degree from Tel Aviv University.

war heaved by destiny and the actions of the world's mighty. Anna's tale is not a story of cataclysm or the movements of great nations - but takes place on the periphery of large events. It is one woman's odyssey, from the rice paddies of North Vietnam to the house on Lake Street in Wakefield.

It was in 1961 that Robert Frost spoke to what must have been the largest listening audience of his life when he read "The Gift Outright," at the inauguration of President John Kennedy.

But even as Kennedy rose to address an expectant nation, the wheels of juggernaut in Asia were already unchecked - their slow movement begun in what was to become, for a generation of Americans, perhaps this century's most devastating conflict.

"Of the many armed conflicts that make this century so distressingly rich in human misery, none has lasted as long as the struggle for Vietnam," (Joseph Buttinger, "Vietnam: A Dragon Embattled," 1967).

Yet the basic irony in Anna's tale must rest in the fact that she became blind at age eight - and many never have come to this country, written her story, or even survived the upheaval in her homeland, but for the initial misfortune which cost her her vision.

Anna, whose name was Kim-Lan then, said she was playing with other children near her home in Xuan Canh, a village set on a plateau about 23 miles from Hanoi, capital of North Vietnam. They were playing at treasure-hunting, digging in the dirt near her parents' hut, when she found a wild, weedy grass she had never encountered before. After digging up some of the weeds, she felt a terrible itching in her eyes and ran home. Her mother inspected her eyes, she said - which were now bright red and burning - but she could find nothing in them.

That night, Kim-Lan came down with a high fever and chills. The next day her mother prepared an eyewash from herbs for her, and fed her hot rice soup to "sweat out the poison." It was to no avail. After three days of fever and delirium, Kim-Lan said her vision was blurry, the images upside-down and distorted, the colors wrong. After two weeks her fever was gone - and so was her eyesight.

Along with her loss of vision, the society around Kim-Lan was becoming increasingly unstable. It was 1953, during the last stages of the eight-year Indochina War, with the French and the Viet Minh in deadly contest for control of North Vietnam.

The French had granted their former colony nominal independence in 1949, but they could not win support of their regime from the Vietnamese people, according to Joseph Buttinger. Shortly after Kim-Lan lost her vision, she said, the French began invading her village.

Kim-Lan's family fled Xuan Canh, intending to leave her behind in the village because her father felt her blindness was a curse which could become contagious. But Kim-Lan said she clung to the skirt of her mother, Nguyen Thi Tu, begging not to be left behind.

The family walked for six hours to the bus, she said, to take them into Hanoi and her aunt's house. She said the doctors in Hanoi told her the infection had been too severe and there was nothing they could do for her, so her mother took her to a French orphanage run by the Sisters of Notre Dame. Kim-Lan, devastated that her parents should abandon her, said she was then given the Christian name Anna, and that she adjusted with some difficulty to the regime at the orphanage, but described one of her most vivid memories, of the large wooden rosaries which the nuns carried, with beads as big as plums that rattled whenever a nun was approaching. Anna said it was useful to have extra-fine hearing, developed in consequence of her blindness - so that she could always tell if a nun was coming - in case Anna was up to some small mischief.

In 1954, the French evacuated the orphanage in Hanoi after the disastrous defeat at Dien Bien Phu, and Anna went south to an elementary school in Cho Lon, just outside of Saigon. Four years later, Anna met Maria Tai, a Vietnamese and graduate of Watertown's Perkins Institution for the Blind, who returned to Saigon in 1958 to establish Vietnam's first boarding school for blind students.

Anna was among the first to be enrolled at the new school - and by 1963 her training there had enabled her to qualify for entrance at Perkins itself. From Perkins she went on the Emmanuel College, where she majored in English literature, receiving her B.A. degree in 1974. Among her favorite authors: Concord's Henry David Thoreau, for his "enormous respect for nature and the world around us."

In addition to her major studies at Perkins and Emmanuel, Anna said, she learned to love serious and plays both piano and organ, including the music of Beethoven (Moonlight Sonata and parts of the Pastoral Symphony) and popular melodies as well. She said she dislikes all rock music ("too noisy") and most opera ("too shrieky").

Ann met her husband, Richard McCauley of Wakefield, on a bus in Watertown. Himself a Perkins graduate, wrestler and master electrician, he had just returned to campus to watch a wrestling bout - and after church the day they met - and a six-year courtship - the two were married, in 1974, at Wakefield's St. Florence Roman Catholic Church.

Anna, an American citizen now, stressed her love for her adoptive country, saying the pace of life is slower in the States than in Asia, where the people are much closer to subsistence level - and have to work very hard just to survive from day to day. She likes the convenience of area stores and hospitals, she added, and especially the labor-saving machines, like vacuum cleaners and clothes washers.

But her greatest enthusiasm seems reserved for the freedoms which Americans enjoy. An admirer of both Lincoln and John Kennedy, she said it is probably difficult for native-born Americans to realize the wealth inherent in the freedoms guaranteed in the U.S. Bill of Rights and the Constitution itself.

"This is the melting-pot, and it's fascinating. There is someone from every nation on earth here, in this land - and that is the source of this country's strength," she said.

There is not space here to tell Anna Kim-Lan McCauley's whole story, nor present each strikingly beautiful image which surfaces from time to time in her book, especially when she is describing her early childhood memories, like the sight of the rice paddies surrounding her village: "The rice stalks are heavy with golden kernels. They stand straight and tall, and when the gentle breeze whispers through them, they bow their heads like soldiers saluting the wind."

The metaphor may be military - perhaps an echo of the war which tore through Anna's homeland - but her message is one of gentleness and peace. If you want to experience more, you'll have to read "Miles from Home" itself.

Anna and Richard McCauley and their children, Michelle, nine, and Nakia, eight, represent a combination of heritages, from three continents, with Asian, American and European antecedents. And that thought, along with Anna's venture itself from the village of Xuan Canh to Wakefield, must bring back the words of Robert Frost in "The Gift Outright," which the poet delivered at Kennedy's inaugural:

The land was ours before we were the land's...

Such as we were we gaverself and her heritage half-way round the world - to add her gift outright to this land. She is no longer miles from home, she said, but in a medium-sized town called Wakefield, not far from the waters of Crystal Lake.

RICHARD AND ANNA McCAULEY, stand with their children, Michelle, nine and Nakia, eight, on the porch of their Wakefield home. The puppy, Snoopy, was unwilling to be photographed.

TASTE OF TEXAS

On Wednesday, July 25th, which Boston Mayor Raymond L. Flynn has proclaimed "Taste of Texas Day", the Quincy Market will be the setting for a promotion of exotic foods. The purpose of this unique promotion, first in a series proposed for major cities across the country, is to introduce New Englanders to the special flavors of a variety of Texas-produced agricultural commodities and other foods which will be marketed nationwide under the "Taste of Texas" logo, a trademark of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The marketing program was conceived by Susan DeMarco, Assistant Deputy Commissioner for Marketing and Agribusiness Development, and is designed to increase the demand for Texas farm and ranch products. Boston will be a test run for what DeMarco describes as a "high risk promotion" to interest food brokers in other U.S. regions in including Texas products, labeled as Texas-grown, in their inventories. If the Boston venture is successful, the Department of Agriculture may carry "Taste of Texas Day" to Chicago, New York and other cities.

DRUM & BUGLE COMPETITION

On August 9, the 27th Lancers will bring to the area one of the finest Drum and Bugle Corps Contest. The contest will begin at 7:30 P.M. at Manning Bowl, Lynn, Mass. and will feature the Blue Devils, Concord, California; Freelancers, Sacramento, California; Velvet Knights, Anaheim, California; Garfield Cadet, Garfield, New Jersey and the host the 27th Lancers, Revere, Mass.

Tickets are $8.00 each reserved seats. For further information, please call (617) 593-4874 or write to 106 Burrill St., Swampscott, Ma. 01907. Tickets may also be purchased at the gate.

FRANKLIN PARK ZOO

The Studebaker Mime Company will perform at the Children's Zoo at Franklin Park at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 28 in the Outdoor Theatre. Living Rainbow will perform at the Franklin Park Zoo from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, July 29 on the Zoo Greeting.

The Studebaker Mime Company will perform selections from its "Face to Face" concert, a journey into what the art of mime can be. The company creates a world of physical theatre that is at different times hilarious, eerie, and dramatic. The performance is part of the Summer Saturdays at the Children's Zoo, a performing arts series which will feature a different theatrical group for children at 2 p.m. every Saturday through August 25. The performance is free with $1.00 admission to the Children's Zoo. The series is sponsored by the Metropolitan Boston Zoos, New England Telephone, Massachusetts Council on the Arts and the New England Foundation for the Arts.

using percussion instruments. The concert is part of the summer-long Franklin Park Festival Concert Series. Concerts are held from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. every Sunday through August 26. Admission is free. The series is sponsored by the Metropolitan District Commission and the Metropolitan Boston Zoos, with support from the Public Celebration program of the City of Boston.

The George Robert White Children's Zoo at Franklin Park is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily (tickets sold until 4 p.m.). Admission to the Children's Zoo is $1.00. There is no admission for the first hour every day. The Children's Zoo is located in Franklin Park Zoo in the beautiful 500 acre Franklin Park. The Zoo entrance is located at Peabody Circle at the intersection of Blue Hill Avenue and Columbia Road. By car, take the Jamaica Way or Southeast Expressway. The Zoo is accessible by the MBTA Red or Orange lines. For information and schedule call 722-3200. General admission to Franklin Park Zoo is free and there is free parking adjacent to the Zoo. CANOE EVENT

On Sunday, August 12, a Grand Canoe Event will be held from Ipswich to Gloucester, sponsored by the Ipswich River Watershed Association, Inc. The event will begin at the Green Street Bridge, Ipswich at 10:30 A.M. and proceed down the Ipswich to Gloucester via Fox Creek and Essex River. The main purpose of this race is enjoyment rather than excessive speed. Prizes will be awarded in a variety of categories at the end of the event and there will be an opportunity for family and friends to join participants, and to picnic if desired.

Pre-registration is necessary, with a $5 per person entry fee. Participants under 18 must have parental authorization. The event may not be appropriate for professional racers. For registration forms, maps or further information, call 887-9685 or 887-8671, or write to IRWA, 562 Maple St., Hathorne, Mass. 01937.

SEAFOOD FESTIVAL

Don't miss the second annual Boston

Seafood Festival on Saturday, July 28, in the tent behind the New England Aquarium.

From 11:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., visitors will be able to watch demonstrations of fish filleting and cooking conducted by area seafood experts. Demonstrators include chefs from Legal Seafoods, Jimbo's Fish Shanty, Arne's Place, and The Daily Catch; consumer affairs persons from Star Market and Purity Supreme; and staff from the Urban Anglers Program and the Commonwealth's Seafood Marketing Program. Visitors will be able to taste the prepared dishes and take recipes home. Other activities include fish printing and coloring for the kids, sport fishing tips and fly tying, fish smoking, and seafood quizzes. A live exhibit of over 25 different kinds of fresh native seafoods will be put together the morning of the festival.

Summer tips for parenting children

Summer fun for kids can mean worry and upsets for parents. It is a time for those minor accidents and upsets. Some parents have found workable techniques for dealing with these summer mishaps. L. Ron Hubbard, in his book Child Dianetics, gives some tips and simple techniques many parents have found helpful in keeping summer fun from becoming summer frustration.

"During the summer you have kids out and about on field trips. If they're hurt it can ruin the whole day," says Norva Jackson of Los Angeles, a parent, school director and camp counsellor. "If you know Dianetics techniques you can save the day. These techniques allow parents to let their kids be more self-determined over these minor upsets and help speed up the healing process of any injuries — and kids tend to become less accident prone."

According to Hubbard, if your child is injured, you should hold him and comfort him, but don't talk or allow any noise until the child recovers from the initial shock. Have him tell you how he hurt himself or get him to point to the area or show you what happened. Have him go over the incident several times until he starts feeling better. Eventually the child will start smiling and return to play.

Ellen Garrison, herself an expectant mother and director of a private school in Cambridge, has seen the difference between children whose parents use Dianetics techniques and those who don't. "I've noticed that children whose parents use the Dianetics techniques with them don't cry as long and don't 'dramatize' their injuries as much as do other children," comments Garrison. "In fact, they even seem to have less accidents. The Dianetics techniques really work!"

Vicky Dougherty, director of a children's camp in Pasadena, California, and mother of a four and a half year old, has used Dianetics techniques along with medical first aid to help injured children. A little girl had fallen on her face in a game of tag and cut herself. Ms. Dougherty immediately gave her similar Dianetics techniques and the child recovered quickly enough to be able to soon return to play.

Dianetics techniques emphasize that a child, like an adult, has a right to his own self-determination. "The main consideration in raising children is the problem of training them without breaking them," Mr. Hubbard writes. "You want to raise your child in such a way that you don't have to control him, so that he will be in full possession of himself at all times. Upon that depends his good behavior, his health, his sanity."

Child Dianetics offers useful techniques to parents when their children get bored or frustrated, simple exercises they can do with their children, for as little as half an hour a day. For example, to keep a child occupied on a long trip a parent can help the child recall pleasurable moments he has had. The parent should make a game of it, as children love to recall happy moments. These techniques can assist in raising a child's self-confidence and increase his attention span.

Jeannie Shurman of Malibu, California, mother of two boys

says, "I noticed my older son has been so much calmer and easier to get along with since using these techniques. He has more consideration of us as parents and has been helpful with his younger brother. My husband and I have also found it's easier to communicate with our children."

Ms. Shurman describes the time her younger son fell down a 12 foot cliff hitting his head on the rocks. His face was bruised and the skin abraded. After application of simple Dianetics procedures he was 'soon happy and smiling again. "I was amazed that his cuts and bruises healed within a couple of days, and he has had no after effects or fear of heights."

What's the best thing a parent can do in any season? "A good stable adult with love and tolerance in his heart," according to Hubbard, "is about the best therapy a child can have."

Spotlighters Young People's Theatre

Elects new officers

Officers for the 1984-1985 season of the Young People's Theatre Workshop of the Silver Lake Spotlighters were announced recently at the community theatre's annual awards night held at the Wilmington K of C.

Elected for the upcoming year were: Tina Favero, president; Katie Finn, vice president; Anne Law, secretary; and Alicia Cuoco, treasurer; all of Wilmington. Tom Woods of North Andover was elected to head the playreading committee consisting of Jennifer Bissett, Cheryl Hartford, and Kendra Mar, all of Wilmington.

The SLS Young People's Theatre

Workshop successfully premiered last spring with a ten-week program that culminated in sold-out performances of Tim Kelly's Krazy Kamp. The workshop is committed to the learning and appreciation of all aspects of theatre and to providing hands-on experience and the opportunity for students to translate learning into practice.

In keeping with that commitment, these newly-elected officers, all students in the first Young People's Theatre program, will assume responsibility for the Young People's Theatre's next season, including budgeting and play selection, under the guidance of the SLS board of directors.

Frank Sferrazza honored

Well-known Wilmington resident Frank Sferrazza was honored recently by the Silver Lake Spotlighters community theatre for his "long-time support, assistance and, especially, his friendship".

Sferrazza received the Spotlighters' first honorary membership presentation, the William Sylvestri

Award. Named for the founder and guiding light of the Spotlighters' organization, the award, according to Spotlighter president Celia Bartolotti, "has a very special significance for the Spotlighters because it is named for a man who served and led this group with a great deal of dedication and devotion."

"Frank Sferrazza has, for many years, been a loyal and dedicated friend of the Spotlighters, both publicly and privately," explained Gretchen Goldsworth of Tewksbury, who was chairperson of the awards night at which the presentation to Sferrazza was made. "It's appropriate that we recognize all he had done for us by presenting him with the very first William Sylvestri Award."

Sferrazza has planned and coordinated many SLS dinner theatres at the Knights of Columbus and their touring company's most recent performance on the Wilmington Common on July 4th. He also served on the Spotlighters' 1984 Scholarship Committee.

"Muppets Take Manhattan"
"Under the Volcano"

"The Muppets Take Manhattan" starring Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy, Rizzo the Rat, Juliana Donald. Directed by Frank Oz. Screenplay by Oz, Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses. Rated G.

Who says they don't make movies like they used to? Have you given up on ever again watching an old-fashioned musical starring a beautiful leading lady, her dashing male counterpart and a cast of thousands, or at least hundreds? "The Muppets Take Manhattan" fits the bill in all aspects as this year's most innocent yet entertaining picture, and includes a well-rounded and talented cast consisting of chickens, bears, a pig and several frogs.

Miss Piggy, giving as especially sensitive performance, displays the vast range of dramatic ability and natural grace she has only hinted at in previous appearances. Kermit the Frog is his usually understated and gentle self, although he displays an uncanny knack for comedy.

The story opens with Kermit, Piggy and assorted friends trying to make it big on the Great White Way, then proceeds on its merry, humorous and slightly sappy way until the surprising ending provided by Piggy.

Yes, corny jokes abound and some of the dialogue is little better than pap, but don't let that bother you, as it probably won't bother the kids. After all, Frank Oz and Jim Henson do about the best job of providing wholesome, entertaining flicks since Walt Disney. Also, a great deal of intelligent, subtle humor outshines the denser, sillier stuff. (Fans of "Midnight Cowboy" will appreciate the fact that the leading rat is named Rizzo, after Dustin Hoffman's character, Ratso Rizzo).

Children and adults alike should be pleased by this colorful and exuberant collection of muppets filling the screen with sweet, good natured fun.

"Under the Volcano" starring Albert Finney, Jacqueline Bisset, Anthony Andrews. Directed by John Huston. Rated R (violence, profanity, adult themes).

Watching a besotted alcoholic dress himself and failing even to manage his socks is a depressing sight. Watching an entire movie about the day in the life of an alcoholic is almost too much to bear.

One can only wonder why John Huston, who has given the world so many memorable pictures, would choose to shoot this morbid, deeply symbolic tale of an English diplomat in Mexico, 1938. Albert Finney deserves no less than a coronation for his performance, and the photography is often magnificent, but there is no accounting for this strange tale.

Although Finney affords the supporting cast provide many gripping moments, there is no real direction for this film to take, and the result is a very interesting character study, but an incomplete picture with a banal ending that Huston should be ashamed of. However, it is only fair to mention that this film held my attention throughout, due mainly to Finney's riveting ability on screen, but, as the closing credits rolled, I could only stare at the screen in bewilderment, wondering what the point of the movie was. As it turned out my husband also did not grasp the reason for the funeral ending. Needless to say, it is not a strong point of any movie to be elusive, no matter how interesting. Therefore, one can only hope that Huston can overcome ill health and leave a legacy that would better befit his stature

Newport Jazz Festival

Tickets are now on sale for the JVC Jazz Festival, a Newport Jazz Festival produced by George Wein, and featuring the greatest names in Jazz, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 18 and 19, at Fort Adams State Park here, from noon to 6:30 p.m.

This is the 31st summer of Jazz Festivals produced by George Wein that originated as Newport Jazz Festival in 1954 in this seaside resort. The JVC Jazz Festival is sponsored by JVC, the distinguished Japanese audio-video manufacturer.

Konnerth joins Visiting Nurses

Jacquelyn S. Deegan, Executive Director of the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East, recently announced the appointment of Lynn Konnerth to the professional staff of the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East. Ms. Konnerth, a speech and language pathologist, will be working with children in the agency's Early Intervention Program.

Ms. Konnerth received her bachelor's degree in speech communication from Case Western Reserve. She also holds a master's degree in speech pathology with a concentration in language disorder in children from the University of Connecticut.

Prior to joining Middlesex-East, Ms. Konnerth was affiliated with the North Shore Children's Hospital in Salem. She has also worked for the Harbor Area Early Intervention Program.

In discussing her new position, Ms. Konnerth said that in addition to working with the children she planned to focus on teaching parents appropriate interactive play activities which stimulate speech and language development. This technique takes advantage of the parents' natural desire to help their child while providing them with the necessary tools. The work of the parents with the child is a critical supplement to the formal sessions with the pathologist.

Ms. Konnerth will be seeing children and their families who live in Middlesex-East's Early Intervention program service area which includes Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, and Woburn.

NMC monthly meeting

The Nursing Mothers Council will be holding its monthly meeting at the Wakefield Public Library at 7:00 P.M. on Wednesday, July 25. This month's topic will be "Milk Supply" and all new parents and parents-to-be are invited to attend.

These free monthly meetings are designed to supply information, offer support, and provide a meeting place for new mothers.

The NMC is an affiliate of BACE, the Boston Association of Childbirth Education. Its members have been trained to offer advice and counseling to women who are breastfeeding. In addition to the meetings, there is a 24-hour telephone counseling service for anyone with questions. More information can be obtained at the meeting or by calling Barbara Low at 665-3405.

Summer tips for parenting children

Summer fun for kids can mean worry and upsets for parents. It is a time for those minor accidents and upsets. Some parents have found workable techniques for dealing with these summer mishaps. L. Ron Hubbard, in his book Child Dianetics, gives some tips and simple techniques many parents have found helpful in keeping summer fun from becoming summer frustration.

"During the summer you have kids out and about on field trips. If they're hurt it can ruin the whole day," says Norva Jackson of Los Angeles, a parent, school director and camp counselor. "If you know Dianetics techniques you can save the day. These techniques allow parents to let their kids be more self-determined over these minor upsets and help speed up the healing process of any injuries — and kids tend to become less accident prone."

According to Hubbard, if your child is injured, you should hold him and comfort him, but don't talk or allow any noise until the child recovers from the initial shock. Have him tell you how he hurt himself or get him to point to the area or show you what happened. Have him go over the incident several times until he starts feeling better. Eventually the child will start smiling and return to play.

Ellen Garrison, herself an expectant mother and director of a private school in Cambridge, has seen the difference between children whose parents use Dianetics techniques and those who don't. "I've noticed that children whose parents use the Dianetics techniques with them don't cry as long and don't 'dramatize' their injuries as much as do other children," comments Garrison. "In fact, they even seem to have less accidents. The Dianetics techniques really work!"

Vicky Dougherty, director of a children's camp in Pasadena, California, and mother of a four and a half year old, has used Dianetics techniques along with medical first aid to help injured children. A little girl had fallen on her face in a game of tag and cut herself. Ms. Dougherty immediately gave her similar Dianetics techniques and the child recovered quickly enough to be able to soon return to play.

Dianetics techniques emphasize that a child, like an adult, has a right to his own self-determinism. "The main consideration in raising children is the problem of training them without breaking them," Mr. Hubbard writes. "You want to raise your child in such a way that you don't have to control him, so that he will be in full possession of himself at all times. Upon that depends his good behavior, his health, his sanity."

Child Dianetics offers useful techniques to parents when their children get bored or frustrated, simple exercises they can do with their children, for as little as half an hour a day. For example, to keep a child occupied on a long trip a parent can help the child recall pleasurable moments he has had. The parent should make a game of it, as children love to recall happy moments. These techniques can assist in raising a child's self-confidence and increase his attention span.

Jeannie Shurman of Malibu, California, mother of two boys

says, "I noticed my older son has been so much calmer and easier to get along with since using these techniques. He has more consideration of us as parents and has been helpful with his younger brother. My husband and I have also found it's easier to communicate with our children."

Ms. Shurman describes the time her younger son fell down a 12 foot cliff hitting his head on the rocks. His face was bruised and the skin abraded. After application of simple Dianetics procedures he was 'soon happy and smiling again. "I was amazed that his cuts and bruises healed within a couple of days, and he has had no after affects or fear of heights."

What's the best thing a parent can do in any season? "A good stable adult with love and tolerance in his heart," according to Hubbard, "is about the best therapy a child can have."

Spotlighters Young People's Theatre

Elects new officers

Officers for the 1984-1985 season of the Young People's Theatre Workshop of the Silver Lake Spotlighters were announced recently at the community theatre's annual awards night held at the Wilmington K of C.

Elected for the upcoming year were: Tina Favero, president; Katie Finn, vice president; Anne Law, secretary; and Alicia Cuoco, treasurer; all of Wilmington. Tom Woods of North Andover was elected to head the playreading committee consisting of Jennifer Bissett, Cheryl Hartford, and Kendra Mar, all of Wilmington.

The SLS Young People's Theatre

Workshop successfully premiered last spring with a ten-week program that culminated in sold-out performances of Tim Kelly's Krazy Kamp. The workshop is committed to the learning and appreciation of all aspects of theatre and to providing hands-on experience and the opportunity for students to translate learning into practice.

In keeping with that commitment, these newly-elected officers, all students in the first Young People's Theatre program, will assume responsibility for the Young People's Theatre's next season, including budgeting and play selection, under the guidance of the SLS board of directors.

ART EXHIBIT

Montserrat School of Visual Art, Dunham Road, Beverly, Mass. (off exit 19, Rt. 128) will present their Summer Term Exhibit, Opening reception on Friday, August 3rd, from 3—5 p.m. The Exhibit continues through August 10th from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Free to the public.

Portfolio reviews for admission into the full-time and part-time program will also be scheduled on August 3rd from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Call Jim Sawyer at (617) 922-8222 to schedule an appointment.

Stoneham Reunion, Class of 1959

The 25th Class Reunion of Stoneham High School will be held October 6 at Bear Hill Golf Club in Stoneham. If you were a member of the Class of 1959, or know of one, and have not been contacted or received an invitation to the reunion, please notify Ken Cataldo at 12 Keeling Rd., Wakefield.

Frank Sferrazza honored

Well-known Wilmington resident Frank Sferrazza was honored recently by the Silver Lake Spotlighters community theatre for his "long-time support, assistance and, especially, his friendship."

Sferrazza received the Spotlighters' first honorary membership presentation, the William Sylvestri

Award. Named for the founder and guiding light of the Spotlighters' organization, the award, according to Spotlighter president Celia Bartolotti, "has a very special significance for the Spotlighters because it is named for a man who served and led this group with a great deal of dedication and devotion."

"Frank Sferrazza has, for many years, been a loyal and dedicated friend of the Spotlighters, both publicly and privately," explained Gretchen Goldsworth of Tewksbury, who was chairperson of the awards night at which the presentation to Sferrazza was made. "It's appropriate that we recognize all he had done for us by

Sferrazza has planned and coordinated many SLS dinner theatres at the Knights of Columbus and their touring company's most recent performance on the Wilmington Common on July 4th. He also served on the Spotlighters' 1984 Scholarship Committee.

"Under the Volcano"

"The Muppets Take Manhattan" starring Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy, Rizzo the Rat, Julianne Donald. Directed by Frank Oz. Screenplay by Oz, Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses. Rated G.

Who says they don't make movies like they used to? Have you given up on ever again watching an old-fashioned musical starring a beautiful leading lady, her dashing male counterpart and a cast of thousands, or at least hundreds? "The Muppets Take Manhattan" fits the bill in all aspects as this year's most innocent yet entertaining picture, and includes a well-rounded and talented cast consisting of chickens, bears, a pig and several frogs.

Miss Piggy, giving as especially sensitive performance, displays the vast range of dramatic ability and natural grace she has only hinted at in previous appearances. Kermit the Frog is his usually understated and gentle self, although he displays an uncanny knack for comedy.

The story opens with Kermit, Piggy and assorted friends trying to make it big on the Great White Way, then proceeds on its merry, humorous and slightly sappy way until the surprising ending provided by Piggy.

Yes, corny jokes abound and some of the dialogue is little better than pap, but don't let that bother you, as it probably won't bother the kids. After all, Frank Oz and Jim Henson do about the best job of providing wholesome, entertaining flicks since Walt Disney. Also, a great deal of intelligent, subtle humor outshines the denser, sillier stuff. (Fans of "Midnight Cowboy" will appreciate the fact that the leading rat is named Rizzo, after Dustin Hoffman's character, Ratso Rizzo).

Children and adults alike should be pleased by this colorful and exuberant collection of muppets filling the screen with sweet, good natured fun.

"Under the Volcano" starring Albert Finney, Jacqueline Bisset, Anthony Andrews. Directed by John Huston. Rated R (violence, profanity, adult themes).

Watching a besotted alcoholic dress himself and falling even to manage his socks is a depressing sight. Watching an entire movie about the day in the life of an alcoholic is almost too much to bear.

One can only wonder why John Huston, who has given the world so many memorable pictures, would choose to shoot this morbid, deeply symbolic tale of an English diplomat in Mexico, 1938. Albert Finney deserves no less than a coronation for his performance, and the photography is often magnificent, but there is no accounting for this strange tale.

Although Finney and the supporting cast provide many gripping moments, there is no real direction for this film to take, and the result is a very interesting character study, but an incomplete picture with a banal ending that Huston should be ashamed of. However, it is only fair to mention that this film held my attention throughout, due mainly to Finney's riveting ability on screen, but, as the closing credits rolled, I could only stare at the screen in bewilderment, wondering what the point of the movie was. As it turned out my husband also did not grasp the reason for the funeral ending. Needless to say, it is not a strong point of any movie to be elusive, no matter how interesting. Therefore, one can only hope that Huston can overcome ill health and leave a legacy that would better benefit his stature.

This is the 31st summer of Jazz Festivals produced by George Wein that originated as Newport Jazz Festival in 1954 in this seaside resort. The JVC Jazz Festival is sponsored by JVC, the distinguished Japanese audio-video manufacturer.

Konnerth joins Visiting Nurses

Jacquelyn S. Deegan, Executive Director of the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East, recently announced the appointment of Lynn Konnerth to the professional staff of the Visiting Nurse Association of Middlesex-East. Ms. Konnerth, a speech and language pathologist, will be working with children in the agency's Early Intervention Program.

Ms. Konnerth received her bachelor's degree in speech communication from Case Western Reserve. She also holds a master's degree in speech pathology with a concentration in language disorder in children from the University of Connecticut.

Prior to joining Middlesex-East, Ms. Konnerth was affiliated with the North Shore Children's Hospital in Salem. She has also worked for the Harbor Area Early Intervention Program.

In discussing her new position, Ms. Konnerth said that in addition to working with the children she planned to focus on teaching parents appropriate interactive play activities which stimulate speech and language development. This technique takes advantage of the parents' natural desire to help their child while providing them with the necessary tools. The work of the parents with the child is a critical supplement to the formal sessions with the pathologist.

Ms. Konnerth will be seeing children and their families who live in Middlesex-East's Early Intervention program service area which includes Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, and Woburn.

NMC monthly meeting

The Nursing Mothers Council will be holding its monthly meeting at the Wakefield Public Library at 7:00 P.M. on Wednesday, July 25. This month's topic will be "Milk Supply" and all new parents and parents-to-be are invited to attend.

These free monthly meetings are designed to supply information, offer support, and provide a meeting place for new mothers.

The NMC is an affiliate of BACE, the Boston Association of Childbirth Education. Its members have been trained to offer advice and counseling to women who are breastfeeding. In addition to the meetings, there is a 24-hour telephone counseling service for anyone with questions. More information can be obtained at the meeting or by calling Barbara Low at 665-3405.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

A person without a sense of humor is like a wagon without springs, one in which you are jolted by every pebble over which it runs as it runs as it travels on the road of life.

Fred Booth, read about an employee who works for him at Mass Electric Co., in Woodchips. His name is Wally Hill who with his brother Harold (Lefty) Hill served with distinction in the U.S. Marine Corps, in WWII. Of course you didn't know that Wally is a hero of the Iwo Jima conflict. Fred, Marines are a proud outfit but they don't brag. We are proud of you, too, Fred, with your over 41 years of service with that "Live-wire," Co. Mass Electric, where "Currently," you are foreman in "charge" of "short circuits."

So you think you're King Tut? The world can't get along without you? I don't want to deflate your ego, but the world couldn't care less about you, me or the neighbor next door, when you're all done "Giving" something to them.

Dr. Sabin, who discovered the oral polio vaccine, is perhaps all done giving and just wanted a letter or two from someone — anyone — as he was hospitalized. It wasn't until a columnist wrote that story in a Chicago newspaper that people responded and sent an avalanche of letters and cards to him, a man who put so many parent's minds at ease as he helped prevent that dreaded disease polio.

Dr. Sabin received 40,000 cards in one week that attests to the fact that people are basically good, albeit a little lazy. So come on folks, send a card or note to one or more of your former teachers who took a tremendous interest in your budding career, your parents who many nights wiped your feverish brow, your doctor who stood by you through a crisis. Yes and I'm not trying to be witty, funny or foolish. Send a card to your plumber, carpenter, bricklayer or auto mechanic, if anyone of them did a wonderful job. "Don't call!" A telephone conversation can't be pinned to a wall, showed to a friend, pasted in a book, it takes but a few minutes to give a lifetime of happiness and joy to some lonely person. Ask Dr. Sabin.

When I was courting my wife, I asked her father for her hand in marriage. "Woodchipper," he said, "you have to take all of her or nothing at all." Well Kathy was a little overweight then so I said, "I'll have to take her in installments." "Furthermore," he asked, "are you able to support a family?" "Yes," I foolishly answered. "Good," he replied. "Counting Kathy there are five of us."

I can truthfully say we've had only one argument in twenty-nine years. It started as we walked up the aisle on our wedding day when she looked at me with those beautiful crystal clear blue Irish eyes and with a sweet smile on her lips, whispered in a loud voice, "Straighten your neck-tie, Stupid."

For every woman who made a fool out of a man, there are hundreds of women who have made men out of fools, and I'm one of them. My cousin married a shoemaker because he was well heeled and the sole heir of a business that started on a "Shoestring."

Do you love, hate or just tolerate Woodchips? Why don't you tell me, so that I can eliminate what I like, you, expand on what you like or soft peddle this or that. Sometimes I get the information second or third hand, like a young lady told me last week that her mother loves the column.

I would never have known that if I hadn't asked, so I did a little telephone research last week and was pleasantly surprised. Thank you readers and also you Aunt Maria, of Wilmington, who calls me every day to tell me she will let me know when she likes something I write. So far she said I'm batting zero.

I love going to Pinewood Garden in North Reading. My neighbor knows that, so asked me to take a plant to find out why it was kind of droopy. I spoke to my friend, Sandy, who is assistant manager of this veritable paradise. "I see you've got a plant from the Bogonia family." "No, Sandy," I responded, "It's from the Angelone family — my neighbors." Well the plant was taken care of nicely because they sure know their business at Pinewood. I told them how I identify a Dogwood tree, when asked "How?" I said, "By its bark of course."

Here are some of my new friends, Mary and Robert Seaberg of Stoneham. Robert is an inspector at General Electric in Lynn, that is just across the river from where I live. I went there years ago and asked for a job but was told they didn't need any carpenters but wanted machinists and did I know what a micrometer was? "Of course I know," I responded. "O.K.," said the employment super, "how many thousands are there in an inch?" That was easy "Millions of them." I proudly said, but I guess that was the wrong answer because he showed me the way out and the General Electric Co. lost the services of a genius.

Anna and Neil Nottebart, also of Stoneham along with Mark and Janet Brewster and their daughter Carol, are readers of this column, put them on your enemy list, Aunt Maria. Steve and Teresa Purrington and their friends Kenny and Wendy Carrier of Wakefield, also read this column — sounds like I'm blowing my own horn — well, I am. Vinny and Ruth Harrington and her mother Florence Munn are my friends from Reading.

Frank Mazzoni, the financial wizard of Wilmington said, "Woodchipper, all you own is a lousy door-knob." "Frank," I responded, "have you ever tried opening a door without a door-knob?" Like the horse-racing handicapper who never bets himself. I offer the following tips, "Bears and Bulls" are nothing to worry about — it's the "Bum Steer" that can put you out of commission. So get in on the ground floor. Otis elevators are going up. Keep your eyes on designer jeans, they're bound to split. Mini skirts will draw a lot of interest. Electric company stocks are great for the "current yield" although there may be a "surcharge." Potato chips are a Wise investment.

"Thank Heaven for Little Boys"

A-eyclone hit the bedroom, clothes are on the floor.

Larry Bird's poster is taped to the closet door.

The living room chairs and sofa, are sagging with wear.

The refrigerator shelves, are almost always bare.

The bathroom is always busy, there's water everywhere. The time spent in the shower, just isn't fair.

Our house is full of gloves and balls and never ending noise. I know you must have guessed it, we have a family of boys.

THOMPSON HALL at the University of New Hampshire is a familiar site for the many UNH graduates from the area. The building, an official historic landmark, is the main administration building on a campus of 188 acres surrounded by another 3,000 acres of fields, farms and woodlands owned by the University. The hall was named after Benjamin Thompson, Woburn native who became world reknown as Count Rumford. (KAP photo)

In crowded Gloucester Harbor, condos, trawlers vie for dockside

Boston Suburbs

'Other cities have forced fishermen out and closed off the harbor. That is not going to happen in Gloucester,' says Mayor Richard Silva. 'Gloucester is a fishing port first and foremost, and this [development] project will provide docking facilities for our fishing fleet.'

By David Purcell
Staff writer of The Christian Science Monitor

Gloucester, Mass. The green fishing trawler Linda B glides into the harbor as scores of gulls circle and screech overhead. The skipper slows his boat, one of hundreds that work out of this harbor, and carefully pilots his way between the rows of docked trawlers. The harbor is so crowded that many boats are berthed three and four abreast.

Yet most of Gloucester's fishing fleet is at sea now, so the harbor isn't nearly as crowded as it can be, says Jamie Fay, a consultant to the city. At Christmas and other times when the fleet is in port, he says, "you can almost walk across the harbor."

Mr. Fay of the Boston consulting firm of McGrath, Sylva & Associates is working with Gloucester officials on a plan to develop a parcel of land fronting the harbor. The goal is to combine successful commercial development with needs of the fishermen.

Harbor Cove, the proposal unveiled last week, will do that, city officials say. The plans call for an 84-room hotel, a restaurant, offices, and shops. A condition placed on the developer requires him to maintain dockage for 15 fishing boats in front of his hotel.

The Gloucester fishing fleet includes about 178 boats year-round. In summer, that number swells, as boats from other areas — such as scallop boats from Virginia — seek out the fertile New England waters.

The fleet annually lands more than 160,000 tons of fish, "more than any other port on the East Coast," according to John Leigh, executive director of the Gloucester Redevelopment Authority (GRA). Although there are 60 miles of shoreline in Gloucester, there are fewer than two miles in the inner harbor.

Meanwhile, great stretches of the Massachusetts coast have been cramped by development during the past few years. Condominiums, restaurants, and boutiques have brought substantial profits to developers. But along the harbors, such development has had the effect of squeezing out traditional water-based activities, such as fishing.

For instance, the push to develop Boston's waterfront caused a shortage of dock space for lobstermen, Fay notes. Landowners there "don't want lobster boats," he says. "They're looking at big bucks" from condominium and commercial development.

Gloucester Mayor Richard Silva says that "other cities have forced fishermen out and closed off the harbor. That is not going to happen in Gloucester."

Fishing and tourism are the two major businesses in Gloucester, says Mr. Leigh of the GRA. The Harbor Cove plan shows "the two can blend," he says.

The GRA established a committee to determine how best to develop the city-owned lot — two and a half acres of prime property sandwiched between the harbor and town's main thoroughfare.

Mr. Leigh says the committee set priorities for developers to follow. The first was space for fishermen; the second was public access to the waterfront; and the third was commercial activity to provide a boost to the slightly weathered business district.

Fay says city officials didn't want industrial development, and there was strong "opposition to residential development."

Condominium owners won't appreciate the diesel fumes and the roar of boats setting off for fishing grounds, he notes.

Some local fishermen, traditionally a closed-mouth group, have expressed skepticism about the project. Joe Turk at the Fisherman's Wharf cooperative says he sees "no problem" with the development. But one worker at the wharf predicted that the new dock space will be given to pleasure boats instead of fishing boats.

Fishing boats are packed in like sardines; at times 'you can almost walk across the harbor' cism about the project. Joe Turk at the Fisherman's Wharf cooperative says he sees "no problem" with the development. But one worker at the wharf predicted that the new dock space will be given to pleasure boats instead of fishing boats.

Harbor Cove plans call for an 84 room hotel, restaurant, offices and shops.

The plan blends fishing and tourism.

Mayor Silva, however, affirms that "Gloucester is a fishing port first and foremost, and this project will provide docking facilities for our fishing fleet."

Many fishermen have docking arrangements with landowners whose property fronts the harbor, Fay says. For instance, the Gloucester House Restaurant often has as many as a dozen boats moored alongside.

The Gloucester development is not the only one in the state that seeks to link the fishing industry with retail activity or tourism, Fay says. Provincetown, he explains, has plans for an $8 million renovation of the town wharf, but there's no way the Provincetown fishing fleet can support such an expense. The need "is to put in some of the sort of development which can [help] support the project."

In Gloucester, the state contributed to the Harbor Cove development by providing $516,000 to shore up the property's sagging bulkhead and build the wharf where the fishing boats will tie up.

Many people hope the Harbor Cove project will provide a boost to the business district. Edward Bond, the site developer, says he hopes the hotel complex will help revitalize the waterfront and encourage other downtown businesses to spruce up their appearances.

Will Your House Be For Sale or On Sale?

Richard Carlson

"Don't let your house be sold at a bargain basement price. Let Carlson sell your house for the right price."
 "We know more about the market because we sell more houses north of Boston than any other Realtor. To be sure of a correct price, we'll do a Comparative Market Analysis on your house before we price it. This analysis takes into consideration all the features of the house and compares them with those of houses recently sold and competitive houses currently on the market. That way, you're certain to get the right price for your house."

Special Offer!

"To help you out, we have specially prepared a Home Seller's Guide. For a free copy, stop by or call any Carlson office."

PICK OF THE PICNICS

It's picnic season. Kicked off in May with those first-of-the-season Memorial Day picnics, the tradition of outside dining continues through Labor Day. International Picnic Day has been established on June 18 to celebrate the tradition.

EASY EIGHT LAYER SALAD

1 package (5.25 ounces) Betty Crocker scalloped potatoes	1 cup thinly sliced celery
3 cups water	1 small onion, thinly sliced
1 cup water	1 package (10 ounces) frozen green peas, thawed and drained
1/2 cup Thousand Island dressing	1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1/4 cup dairy sour cream	1 slice bacon, crisply cooked and crumbled
1 cup shredded lettuce
1-1/2 cups shredded carrots

Heat potatoes and 3 cups water to boiling in 2-1/2 quart saucepan. Reduce heat, cover and simmer until tender, 15 to 20 minutes. Rinse under running cold water, drain. Mix 1 cup water and the Sauce Mix in saucepan. Heat to boiling over medium heat, stirring constantly, cool. Stir in dressing and sour cream. Mix sauce mixture and potatoes. Layer lettuce, carrots, celery, onion, peas, potato mixture, cheese and bacon in 3- or 3-1/2 quart bowl. Cover and refrigerate at least 8 hours. Serve with additional Thousand Island dressing if desired. 5 or 6 servings.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): No adjustments are necessary. Betty Crocker is a registered trademark of General Mills, Inc.

Slitting Machine Operator Training Program

Unusual opportunity requiring:

High school diploma
Good mathematical ability
Real mechanical flair
Strong desire to learn

We are a leading company engaged in the manufacture and processing of high technology paper, film and fabrics. This plant is an important user of several specialized machines that cannot be duplicated in ordinary vocational training environments. This equipment includes the electron beam coating and laminating, vacuum metalizing and razor blade slitting. People-skills in operating this machinery earn a higher than average income and, due to the specialized nature of the technology, have a promising future.

Several openings are now available for slitting machine operator trainees who are well spoken and with high energy levels who are serious about working hard to learn to operate this equipment. This will be a long term, on the job training program in our rapidly expanding company. Good hourly rate, with advancement possibilities, and excellent employee benefits program.

Positions currently available on both 1st and 2nd shifts.

For immediate consideration, please apply in person only,

At Breakheart Reservation

Concern over drownings

Breakheart Reservation in Saugus has once again this summer earned its name. Since warmer weather began two deaths resulting from complications after near drownings on the reservation have broken the hearts of two area families.

Two young men, one 18 and the other 20 years old, died this summer at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital as a result of swimming in the restricted water.

The sorrow and anguish these two families have undergone can not be eased, but perhaps another fatal accident can be prevented.

Michael Slager, M.D., Emergency Department Chief at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital

recently voiced his concern about these deaths.

"We at the hospital are very, very concerned that these terrible, tragic incidents don't happen again," he said. "Melrose-Wakefield Hospital treats one or more near drownings every summer in our Emergency Department. The deaths of these two young men are a terrible, senseless waste of life."

Dr. Slager hopes that young people will learn something from these deaths.

Although swimming in a restricted area seems fun and exciting, it is very, very dangerous. Dr. Slager is not just trying to keep area teenagers from having a good time.

"The experience of working on a drowning victim is absolutely devastating," says Dr. Slager. "We tell young people over and over again not to swim in unsupervised areas, but there are always those who don't listen or heed the warnings. We can only hope those individuals will be lucky enough not to require resuscitation efforts in the Emergency Department," he added.

There are a number of safety tips that a little common sense will dictate. Among these are the following: never swim alone, never swim while under the influence of drugs or alcohol, don't over exert yourself, take frequent rest breaks, never dunk anyone or throw someone in the water, and think twice before doing something potentially dangerous and then don't do it (like swimming in restricted water).

As a special tip, Dr. Slager offers the suggestion of a very worthwhile time investment. "In light of these two recent tragic deaths, I would like to recommend that everyone who is physically able take a lifesaving and a CPR course. The knowledge of these lifesaving skills just may be the deciding factor in a life or death situation."

A SPECIAL GOVERNMENT Relations Committee meeting was held recently at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital to get an update on legislative issues that concern the hospital. Two of the members on the committee, Legislative Trustee Al Struzziero of Wakefield (on left), and Trustee John E. Higgins of Melrose (on right), are shown with the Massachusetts Hospital Association's Director of Government Relations Bernard Flynn of Amesbury (center), who was the guest speaker.
